

Research and Sponsored Programs: Macro Flowcharting the Post-Award Process

Flowcharting the Post-Award Process: Definitions

A subagreement, subgrant or subcontract are broadly defined as:

Agreements from one institution to another institution or individual in support of a project in which the programmatic activity is carried out through a cooperative arrangement between or among the recipient institution (UW-Madison) and one or more other institutions or individuals which are separate legal entities, administratively independent from the recipient. The involvement of the subrecipient institution or individual is that of actually performing a portion of the scope of work as opposed to simply providing a routine service or consulting activities.

Cash Advance Method is broadly defined as:

A process used in requesting cash needs under various advance payment mechanisms that include, but are not limited to, Treasury check and electronic funds transfer.